

This is a story told through the actions of the small creatures known as "Pikmin" as they make their way from the public square at Alexanderplatz to Potsdamer Platz and finally ending their trip at the Kulture forum. Along the way they continue to take objects at increasingly smaller scales as they take the easily identifiable TV Tower in Alexanderplatz to a trash can just outside of the of the u-bahn station in Potsdamer Platz. Although they do not go without leaving something behind as they replace the taken objects with familiar food objects. These are based on the my early observations and experiences of the city.

01

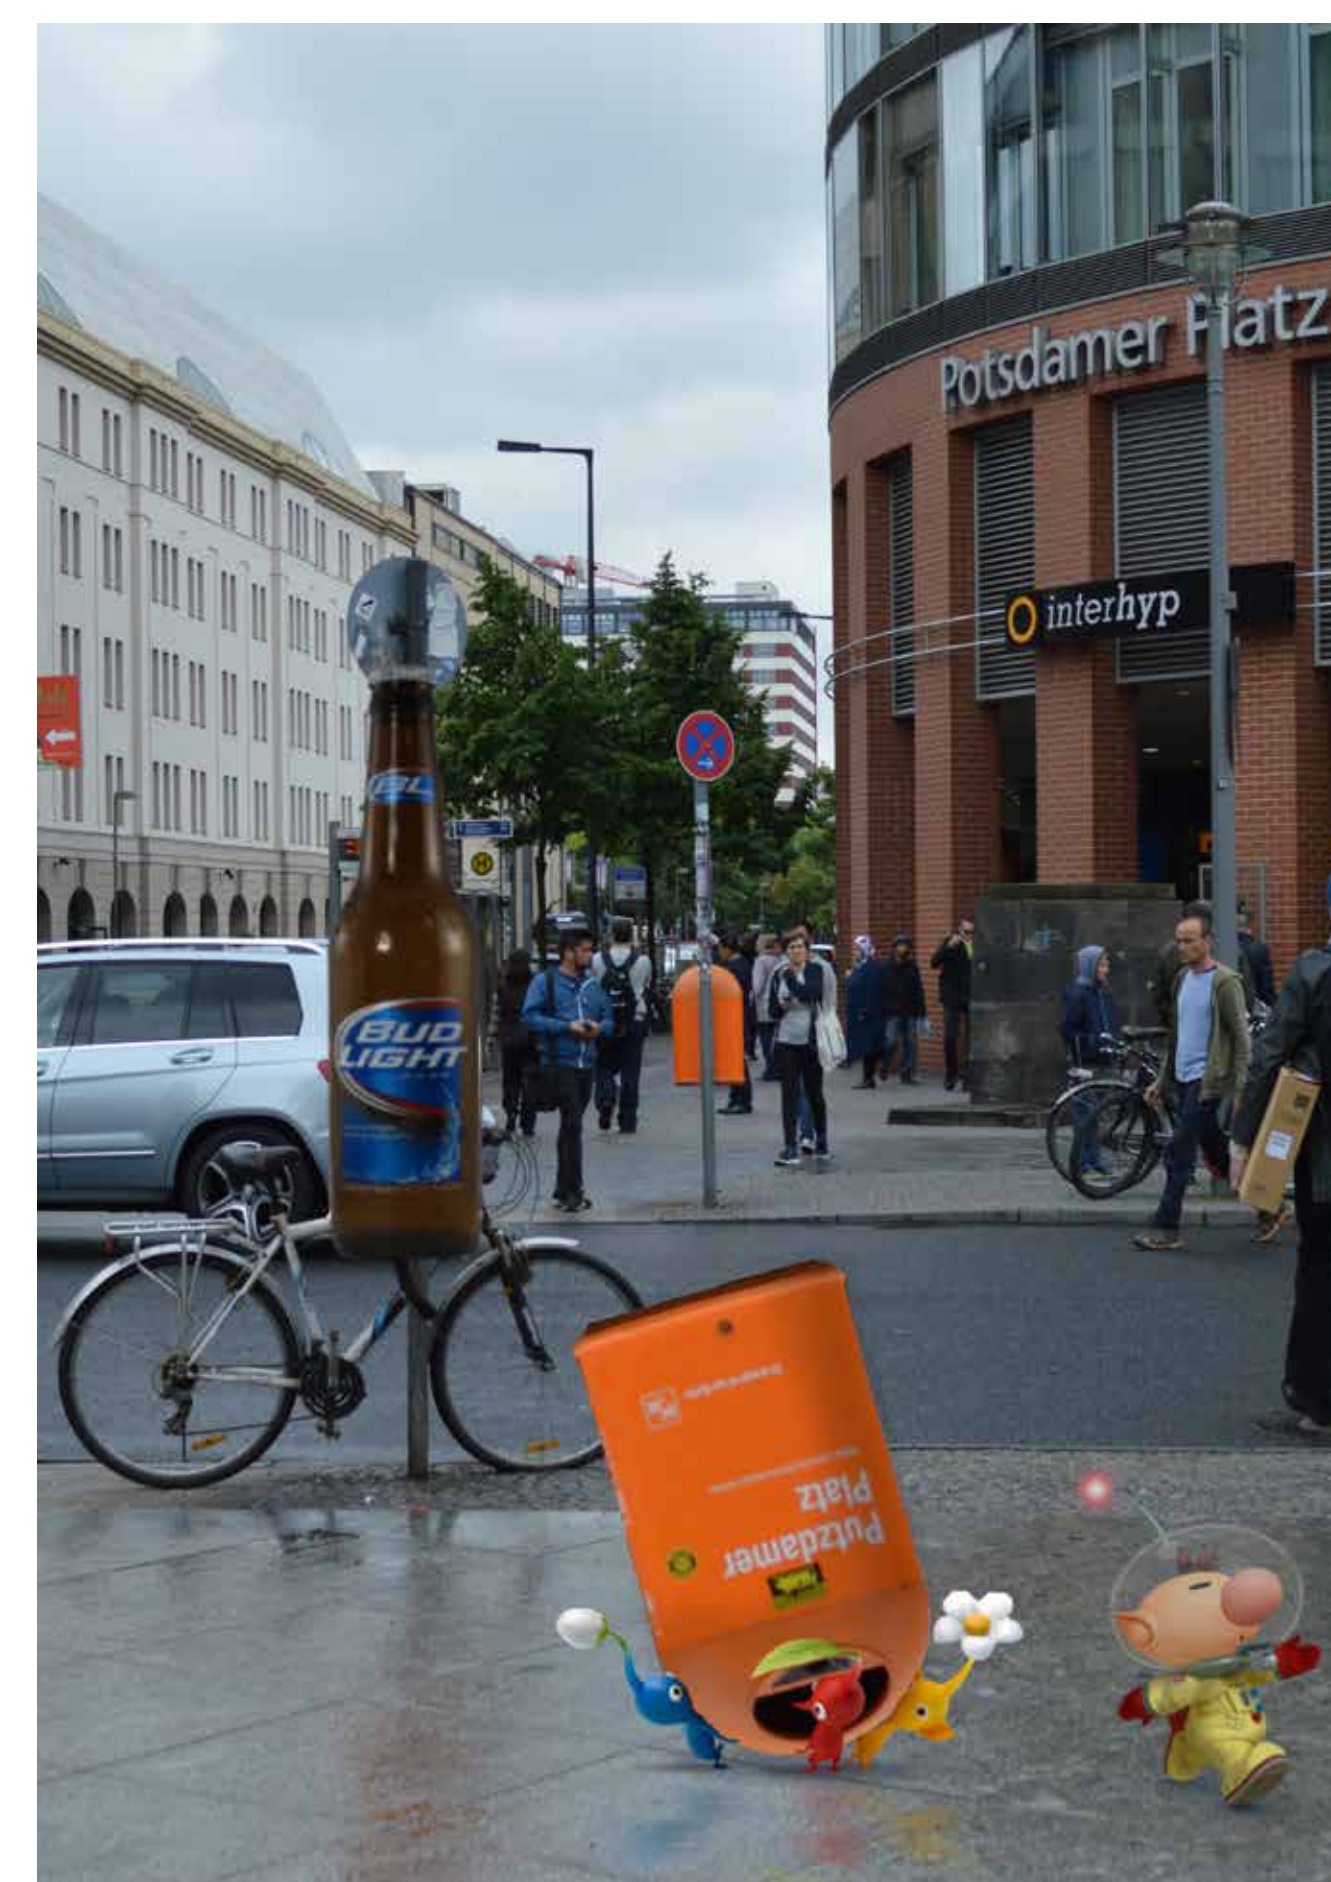

02

03

04

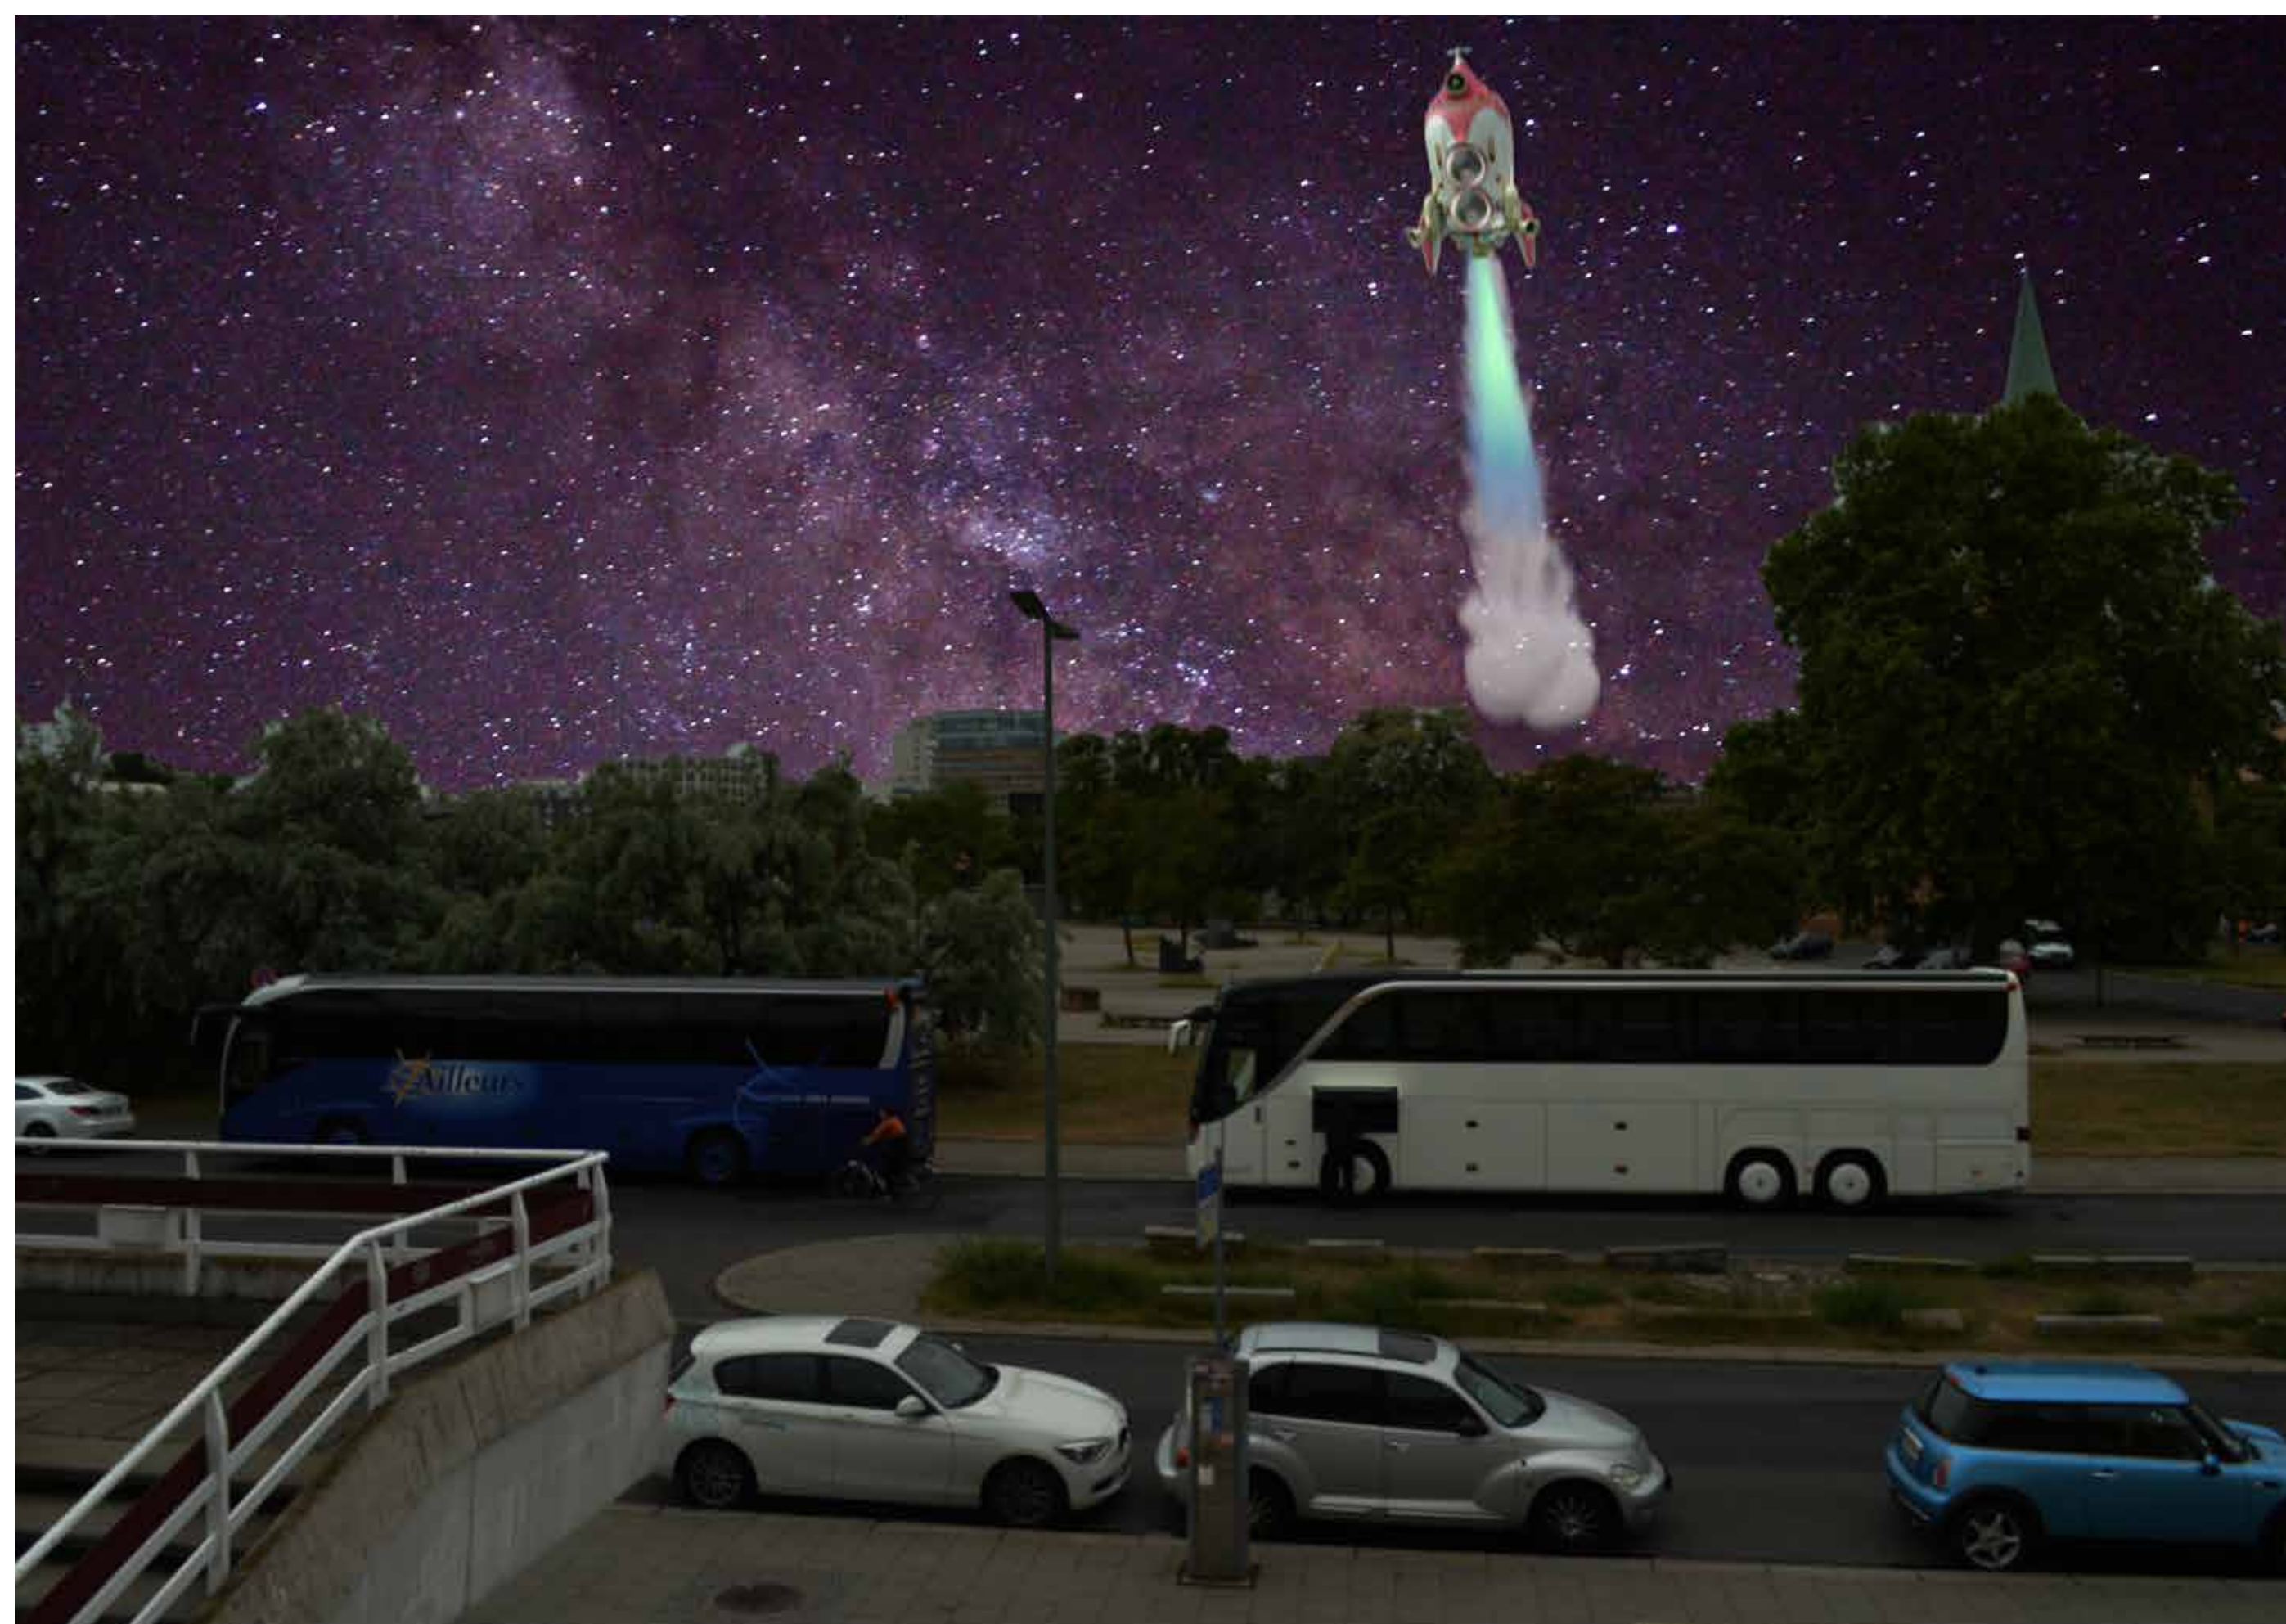

05

06

07

08